

What Is Freedom in AA?

Grapevine Article May 1960 by Bill W

THE TRADITIONS and customs of Alcoholics Anonymous reveal a charter for individual and group freedom, the like of which history has never before produced. We have no humanly administered government whatever.

Once upon a time, there was an AA member who got the notion that his own group was a little too stuffy, respectable, and intolerant. Hence it was, he thought, over fearful of the lapses and deviations of its members. Tongue in cheek, he pondered a remedy. Finally, he hung a placard in the clubroom. It read as follows: "Folks, just about anything goes in here. But if you happen to be drunk at this meeting, don't be too noisy about it. And please don't smoke your opium in the club elevators!"

True, our friend had gone overboard to make his case. An AA drunk at an AA meeting is seldom seen, and it's probable that nobody has yet smoked opium in a clubhouse. Nevertheless, any of us can read between the lines of that placard, and to good effect.

Our prankster was really saying to each of the respectable and the fearful, "But for the grace of God, there go I." To disturbers of the group peace, he was saying, "Nobody can compel you to behave or punish you if you do not. AA has Twelve Steps for recovery and for spiritual growth. It has Twelve Traditions for the unity of every AA group and our whole Fellowship. These Traditions show how we can all stay in one piece, if we will. Now, this meeting place costs some money. We hope you will put some cash in the hat, but we don't want to make you do it. You can attack us, but you'll probably find that most of us won't fight back. You can bust your anonymity in public and misuse the AA name for your own prestige and pocketbook. If you insist on such foolishness, we can't stop you. The same is true if you drag the AA name into public controversy. We hope you won't do any of these things to us, or to yourself. We simply say that you will have to practice AA's principles because you want them for yourself—not because we insist. The choices are yours; this is your charter of freedom in AA."

For any other society, such unlimited freedom for the individual would be disastrous. Sheer anarchy would take it over in jig time. How is it, then, that we AAs can stand this amount of liberty, a liberty which sometimes looks like a license to do exactly as we please, individually and collectively? Then, too, is this unheard-of charter of liberty made possible by our virtues? Or is it actually powered by our necessities?

Well, our necessities are certainly immense and compelling. Each of us must conform reasonably well to AA's Steps and Traditions, or else we shall go mad or die of alcoholism. Therefore, the compulsion among most of us to survive and to grow soon becomes far stronger than the temptation to drink or to misbehave. Literally, we must "do or die." So we make the choice to live. This, in turn, means the choice of AA principles, practices, and attitudes that can salvage us from total disaster by insuring our sobriety. This is our first great and critical choice. Admittedly, this is made under the fearful and immediate lash of John Barleycorn, the killer. Plainly enough, this first choice is far more a necessity than it is an act of virtue.

But once over this hump, we commence to make another kind of choice. We begin to see that AA principles are good ones. Though we are still beset with much rebellion, we increase the practice of these principles out of a sense of responsibility to ourselves, our families, and our groups. We begin to obey because we feel we ought to obey. We see that this, though painful, is the right thing to do. As we try for results, we see that we are growing. This is an earned satisfaction. Life still isn't easy, but it's a whole lot better. Besides, we have a lot of company. All around us there are plenty of fellow travelers, individuals or groups. We can do together what we can't do in separation.

Finally, we see that there is still another dimension of choice which may now and then be attained. This is the point where we can take an attitude, engage in a practice, or obey a sound principle because, without reservation or rebellion, that is what we really want. When our willingness and acceptance become this complete, we find that all rebellion disappears. Now, we conform because we fully want to conform. Or to put it another way: We want nothing else but God's will for us and His grace for our fellows.

Looking back, we see that our freedom to choose badly was not, after all, a very real freedom. When we chose because we "must," this was not a free choice, either. But it got us started in the right direction. When we chose because we "ought to," we were really doing better. This time, we were earning some freedom, making ourselves ready for more. But when, now and then, we could gladly make right choices without rebellion, holdout, or conflict, then we had our first view of what perfect freedom under God's will could be like. Few indeed can long remain on that lofty plateau; for most of us, its permanent attainment has to be a lifetime and, more probably, an eternal job. But we know that this highest plateau is really there—a goal someday to be reached.

Such are the several freedoms in AA, and this is how they seem to work among us. To gain these insights took a long time. It was not until 1945, ten years after I met Dr. Bob, that we even dared put the Traditions of Alcoholics Anonymous on paper. There had been a period in which we continually feared what erratic members within and the world without might do to us. It was difficult to believe that our group conscience could be a reliable guide. Hence we questioned the wisdom of giving every AA group its local autonomy.

Still more, we questioned whether we shouldn't throw out undesirables and even unbelievers. To give every alcoholic in the world an exclusive right to say whether or not he would be an AA member was a breathtaking decision. Such were the fears of those days, and such were the restrictions that we were tempted to place upon one another. After all, these were the restrictions that even the more benign of societies and governments had had to place on their members and citizens. Why should we be the exception?

Happily, however, we adopted no governmental measures. Instead, we cast up the Twelve Traditions of AA. These were truly the utterance of our entire group conscience. The amazing degree of today's voluntary conformity to them is something for the greatest wonder and thanksgiving. We now know that we shall always practice these principles: first, because we must; then because we ought to; and finally, because the majority of us will deeply want to do just that. There cannot be the slightest question of this.

We trust that we already know what our several freedoms truly are and that no future generation of AAs will ever feel compelled to limit them. Our AA freedoms create the soil in which genuine love can grow—the love of each for the other, and all for God Himself.

Community News

Last month, I neglected to thank Intergroup volunteer Gary D. for replacing the fencing around the office patio. My son Patrick stained it and it looks fantastic! Thanks guys!

On July 18 we had an amazing workshop on preparing stories and flyers for submission to the POST and the Grapevine. If you missed it you will find the highlights soon at aaGainesville.org. Our webmaster/POST editor team, Ralph and Jennifer K., introduced participants to graphics principles and the use of AI (artificial intelligence). Beth R. and Josie made suggestions for picking an interesting topic and developing a storyline. It was a Saturday afternoon well spent, learning how best to create submissions for publication.

We'll start planning for the Gratitude dinner at the end of August. Save the date, November 21. Consider joining us in service for this Intergroup fundraiser.

Chairperson's Corner

Hello to all,

What an awesome POST & Grapevine Writing & Graphic's Workshop! With 15 attendees, we learned about how to create a flyer for submission to the POST and Website. We also learned about how to share our experience, strength & hope in writing for the POST & the Grapevine.

I want to thank JK., RK., BR. and JC. for taking time out of their busy schedules to share with us.

I also want to thank the D-14 Grapevine Chair, Dan E, for helping to put on this wonderful workshop.

Intergroup Upcoming Events:

How To Chair a Meeting Workshop Sunday, September 13, 2-4pm @ Triangle Club, with topics such as literature vs. discussion meetings, dealing with an attendee in crisis, etc. This workshop will also be covering accessibility issues.

2026 Gratitude Dinner: Saturday, November 21! More will be revealed as the year goes by.

In your service,

Freedom In Sobriety

By R.R.

<https://www.aacle.org/freedom-in-sobriety/>

The topic of freedom often comes up at A.A. meetings and for this alcoholic; peace of mind has been my goal from the very beginning. Our minds are full of negative thoughts and if we are alcoholics, we are not sure which of these ideas are valid with respect to our goals as we navigate the road to recovery.

We can itemize these things such as: guilt, shame, regrets, self loathing, fear, etc. and it still leaves some of us, passing it off as more of the same minutia we've been hearing for most of our lives. What degree of importance do we, as individuals, place on any one of these items and expect it to make that much different in our overall growth?

As I look back on my thinking patterns of the past, I realize that there weren't too many of those thoughts that weren't influenced by some thought of material gain. That, in itself, isn't necessarily wrong or bad when it comes to the normal thinking person, but when it comes to the alcoholic, without the same disciplines of the normal person, it becomes the yoke around our necks that drags us down into that pit that we are all too familiar with.

I was surprised, one day, when I received a phone call from my first wife's husband, he was reading me the riot act about an incident that my son and they were having, at the time, and he thought I was involved in it. I tried to be patient and not say anything to provoke him, and after he ran out of things to throw into the ring, he finally took one final shot by saying: "well, I've heard stories about you, and you're no angel."

My response was, "I've done a lot of things in my life that I'm not proud of. But, I'm not ashamed of anything that I've done in the last 22 years" (sober 22 years at the time). The conversation ended peacefully. How many people can say that?

Freedom from shame was what I became aware of from that conversation, and as I start to look at all of the other negative thing on the list, I realize that most of them have been reduced to the point of irrelevance. That does not mean that I don't have lingering regrets for things that happened prior to my getting sober, it only means that by practicing these principles in all my affairs, I don't make as many mistakes, and I never do anything to intentionally hurt anyone.

We can't change one single thing that happened in the past, but we can learn from them and we can certainly do better in the present, with only an occasional stumble.

One of the most important ingredients for me is, being totally honest about my motives for the things I do on any given day. If they are pure and unselfish, I will have a clear conscience.

Living by principles takes most of the decision making out of my hands. That, I think, is what they meant when they wrote Step two. We depend on help from outside of ourselves.

By getting in the habit of doing it that way for such a long period of time, the rat race between my ears slowly diminished and somewhere along the way, my head has cleared up and most of the conflict has subsided. What a blessing it is to fall asleep each night without all of the endless garbled calculations repeating themselves over and over in my mind until I fell asleep from pure mental exhaustion.

You can't put a price on peace of mind, and in my own words I would define it as "freedom from all unresolved mental issues."

After years of trial and error, I seem to have settled into a pattern of thinking, based on principles that I've come to embrace, that have taken most of the guess work out of the choices that I make. There are no more sleepless nights due to that rat race in my head.

I know that I'm doing the best I can, based on what I've learned in Alcoholics Anonymous. I'm at peace with myself and with others, for the most part, and what more could a person ask for. The cauldron is no longer bubbling between my ears. Now, to me; that's freedom. ❖

June Update

Aloha District 14

Thought June would be a quiet month? Not a chance! Between the heat, drought, and rainstorms that seem determined to stop traffic, it's been quite a ride.

My blueberries are a great reminder of sobriety. After losing blooms in the freeze, they're now loaded with fruit and may have their best year yet. Recovery can be the same way—there are setbacks, but when we stay connected, use our AA toolkit, and help others, the blessings keep growing.

Our Founder's Day Celebration, "Around the World in 91 Years," was a wonderful reminder of how far AA has come. Thank you to everyone who visited the Archives display. We are still collecting group histories, so please help preserve the story of your home group.

Make your group's voice heard! If your group does not have a GSR, consider electing one and joining us at the District 14 meeting on the 2nd Wednesday of each month at 6:30 PM at Westminster Presbyterian Church.

We enjoyed a great post-conference report from Delegate Lori P., including the exciting news that the Big Book 5th Edition is now at the printer. Stay tuned for release information.

The "Vulnerable Warriors" Men's Workshop had excellent participation, and the 352BID & YPG Ice Cream Social reminded us that fellowship is alive and well.

These events show Tradition One in action: Our common welfare comes first; personal recovery depends upon AA unity.

As we celebrate Independence Day and America's 250th year, please have a safe and sober holiday. Keep those AA numbers handy and remember—if you're struggling, reach out before you pick up. Looking ahead, don't miss the Area 14 Assembly, July 24–26. District 14 continues to show up, share experience, and carry the message.

We're not a glum lot—there's plenty happening! Check the POST and events page at aa.gainesville.org.

Mahalo for your support and service.
